

ABSTRACT

In a wireless network, transmit power levels may be interactively adjusted to dynamically maintain a desired level of network loading and/or data throughput in a changing network environment.